CHAPTER ONE

Nutmeg (Myristica fragrans)
Nutmeg is the seed or ground spice of several species of the genus Myristica. Myristica fragrans is a dark-leaved evergreen tree cultivated for two spices derived from its fruit: nutmeg and mace.

NUTS

History

Nuts have been a staple in the human diet since the beginning of time. In Singapore, “Kacang Puteh”, which means “white nuts”, is a popular traditional snack that is an assortment of nuts wrapped in thin paper cones made from old newspapers and magazine pages.

Uses

Nuts are a highly prized food and energy source of nutrients for humans and wildlife. They are not only rich in protein and good fats, but also add texture to dishes such as the “Grilled Beef Tongue” with cashew cream – a popular appetizer in Botanico.

APPETISERS

- SMOKED AUBERGINE 15
Also known as “eggplant”, the aubergine is smoked in the inka with oak chips, served with fresh celtuce, fermented shrimp paste jam and grilled rice cracker.

CHAPTER TWO

Ginger (Zingiber officinale)

Ginger is a flowering plant whose rhizome, ginger root or simply ginger, is widely used as a spice or a folk medicine. It is a herbaceous perennial which grows annual pseudostems about a meter tall bearing narrow leaf blades.

ROOTS

History

Roots were main sources of carbohydrates for our ancestors and remain an important source of energy. Root vegetables like tapioca and sweet potato were some of the most common wartime foods eaten during the Japanese occupation in Singapore, as rice and meat were scarce.

Uses

Roots are high in nutrients and are an important source of fiber, required for a balanced diet. Edible roots such as ginger and beetroot are some of the ingredients that are used in dishes served at Botanico.

MAIN PLATES

- V ABACUS & ARTICHOKEs 27
Abacus seeds made with tapioca and yam, served with textures of Jerusalem artichoke, artichokes, pickled eryngii mushrooms and spiced soy sauce.
Vegan option is available upon request
- CRAB RISSONI 32

CHAPTER THREE

Cloves (Syzygium aromaticum)
Cloves are the aromatic flower buds of a tree in the family Myrtaceae, Syzygium aromaticum. They are native to the Maluku Islands in Indonesia, and are commonly used as a spice.

HERBS AND SPICES

History

Early uses of herbs and spices were connected to medicine and preservation. Clove and nutmeg are examples of the first few spices to be introduced in Singapore and the city-state quickly grew into a major historical port for the spice trade between Asia and Europe.

Uses

Herbs and spices are now commonly used in the culinary world for flavouring and colouring and are packed with health benefits. If you take a closer look, you can find some of these herbs and spices used in Botanico's menu items.

(Hint: Look in the appetisers and desserts section)
